

PRWR 3820 3.0 Workshop in Presentation Strategies

Primarily a performance course, PRWR 3820 combines a study of presentation techniques with practical workshops on delivering presentations in an institutional setting. Students will also read and view select presentations, and learn to critique them from rhetorical, contextual, and technical angles. Particular emphasis will be placed on the student's ability to deliver effective informational and persuasive presentations, both individually and as part of a group. A portion of the course will also be devoted to the strategic use of electronic visual tools.
